CORPORATE PROFILE

Since its conception in 1924, Higashi-Nippon Bank has been deeply committed to the fundamental business philosophy of working to cultivate a prosperous regional community through sound banking practices and constructive contributions as a responsible corporation. As a regional financial institution devoted to this vital mission, the Bank has dynamically carried out the supply of top-caliber financial products and services designed to support the development and prosperity of the region where it does business.

Higashi-Nippon Bank's main operating territory is the greater metropolitan area made up of Tokyo and the five surrounding prefectures. As of March 31, 2009, the Bank operated a total of 76 branch offices, of which 45, including the head office, are located in the Tokyo area.

MESSAGE FROM THE MANAGEMENT

Higashi-Nippon Bank has launched the "NEW STEP Higashi-Nippon (a new step for customers)" medium-term management plan from April 2009. Under this plan, we aim to realize the stable and sustainable growth of Higashi-Nippon Bank through various measures such as further strengthening our relationship with customers through "face-to-face" interaction while engaging in locally based financial services in metropolitan areas centering on Tokyo. Higashi-Nippon Bank and other regional financial institutions have service areas that are limited in scope while the scale of their operations is matched to the size of their respective operating territories. Due to these characteristics, regional financial institutions are well positioned to courteously listen to customers' concerns and carefully provide appropriate guidance. Regional financial institutions also take a sincere and dedicated approach to helping local small and medium-sized businesses-our main customers-deal with the issues they face.

When making loans, for example, financial statements and other data undoubtedly serve as useful indicators that provide an accurate account of a company's management. Nonetheless, I believe that numbers alone do not reveal the entire story about a company. With our emphasis on face-to-face relationships, Higashi-Nippon Bank can provide customers with appropriate advice concerning changes in their business conditions and accurately identify the underlying causes of such changes. In other words, by nurturing close relationships with customers, we can correctly recognize those areas of their operations where numerical information is meaningful as well as other aspects of their operations not readily reflected only by facts and figures. For precisely this reason, we are confident that Higashi-Nippon Bank's capabilities in credit screening of small and medium-sized companies are on par with those of so-called megabanks.

Higashi-Nippon Bank's role extends beyond the mere provision of funds. Today, managers of small and medium-sized companies face a wide array of challenging issues. Higashi-Nippon Bank aims to provide total responses to these issues, and we believe this objective can be attained only through "face-to-face interaction with customers to ensure their feelings are communicated."

When comparing the Japanese economy to Mt. Fuji, small and medium-sized companies form the broad base of the economy. The Japanese economy's rise to majestic heights, or in other words the readiness of Japanese companies to face global competition, can be attributed specifically to the existence of these small and medium-sized companies, which provide support as the base of the economy by offering their high levels of technologies and productivity. Financial institutions such as Higashi-Nippon Bank thus play an indispensable role by providing funds to these companies. Above all, Higashi-Nippon Bank thoroughly adheres to its stance of lending funds entrusted by local depositors to locally based customers who require such funds. Higashi-Nippon Bank boasts a high deposit-loan ratio that ranks as one of the highest among Japanese banks. Moreover, approximately 65% of our lending volume consists of loans made to small and medium-sized businesses. No other bank in Japan of a similar scale as Higashi-Nippon Bank boasts such figures.

By actively promoting the circulation of locally procured funds in this manner, we are contributing to the prosperity of the regional community while injecting vitality into the region's small and medium-sized companies. This circulation of funds, in turn, enables the base of the Japanese economy to be maintained in a healthy state.

The crucial issue in the environment surrounding Japanese financial institutions is to ensure financial intermediary functions are properly deployed during this unprecedented economic crisis.

Specifically, regional financial institutions are expected to facilitate financing for small and medium-sized companies based on their community-based finance business models and provide costconscious services that generate profits commensurate with these models. At the same time, they are also being asked to contribute to the complete revitalization of local communities through their human resources and information.

Amid this economic environment, Higashi-Nippon Bank recognizes that such circumstances provide a good opportunity to fully demonstrate our raison d'être, and I believe that Higashi-Nippon Bank can make its strong presence fully evident by steadily executing the "NEW STEP Higashi-Nippon" medium-term management plan.
